Lady Fleming Is Deported, Greek Citizenship Revoked

ATHENS, Nov. 14 (NYT) .- Lady Fleming, the Greek-born widow of Sir Alexander Fleming, the discoverer of penicillin, was stripped of her Greek citizenship today, and put aboard a London-bound plane by Athens police. According to George Mangakis, her lawyer, the alling 62-year-old deportee was taken from her hed in a downtown Athens apartment at 7:30 a.m. today by plainclothes policemen. She was driven to Athens allens' police headquarters before being escorted to the airport and deported aboard an Olympic Airways direct flight to London.

When she arrived at London's Heathrow Airport, Lady Fleming at first refused to leave the plane and demanded to be returned to Greece. It took immigration, police and airport officials and one of her relatives nearly an hour to persuade ber to leave the aircraft.

In o news conference at Heathrow, she said, "They gave me no fine, to park my, suitcases. All they gave me was an alrerant licket and my British passport." (She asserted that she was deported because her popularity in Athens after her release from prison three weeks ago embar-rassed the government. "I received flowers, and people came

Mariner-9 Enters Mars Orbit, Begins Historic 90-Day Study

Close-up Photos Poor So Far

By Thomas O'Toole PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 14 (WP). - America's Mariner-9 swept into orbit around Mars early today, the first spacecraft in history to become a satellite of another planet. This afternoon, lt got down to the initial serious work of its 90-day orbital mis-sion, sending back to earth the first close-up photos of the red planet.

They showed Mars heavily obscured by the clouds of dust which have whipped the planet's surface for almost two months. But the pictures bore faint hints of craters near the south pole of Mars, and scientists said this indicated that the Mortian atmosphere was gradually clearing.

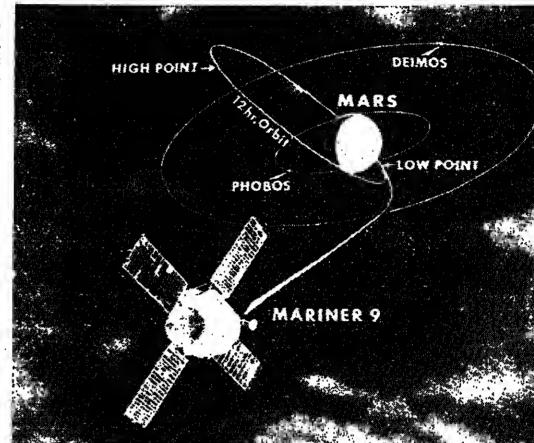

They voiced hopes that the satellite's twin cameras would

Even as Mariner was making exploration history, the Soviet Union was disclosing to scientists in the United States that its two instrumented spacecraft, Mars-3 and Mars-3, will attempt to land on the Martian surface. Trailing Mariner-9 through space by a week, the two Soviet spacecraft are apparently built so that they will go into orbit and separate into two capsules

It was not known whether the Soviet lander contains instruments that would let it search for signs of Martian life. One American scientist said that the Soviet spacecraft would not attempt to search for life, but might just dig up some of the Martian soil for chemical analysis and photograph the region where it lands.

Mariner-9 went into orbit near the western edge of Mars, about 1,400 miles south of the planet's equator. The spacecraft was following a path that took it northeast across the sunlit face of the planet, then southwest across the dark side.

Shotgun Fired in Fight Hijacker Felled With Fire Ax

By Crew of Canadian Airliner

CALGARY, Alberta, Nov. 14 ond he was completely knocked ont."

(UPI) .- A man carrying a shotgun and 40 pounds of dynamite hijacked an Air Canada DC-8 yesterday. After six hours, he was jumped by the plane's pilot and knocked unconscious by an assistant purser armed with a fire court. Inspector J.D. Benthen of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police identified the hijacker as Paul Joseph Cini, 27, of Calgary.

The hijacker was taken from the airliner when it landed here and placed in a local hospital. The hospital today said that he was in fair condition and that he was recovering from his inturies.

The hijacker struck shortly after the airliner, with 115 passengers aboard, left Calgary on a flight to Toronto. The plane was diverted to Great Falls, Mont., where it was refueled. It left for Regina, Saskatchewan, but returned to Great Falls. The hijacker permitted the passengers and three stewardesses to leave the aircraft.

Overpowered in Air

After numerous changes of mind, the hijacker ordered the pilot to fly the plane back to Calgary. The hijacker was overpowered and knocked unconscious as the airliner approached Calgary.

The plane's pilot, Capt. Vernon Ehman, described how the hijacker was overpowered.

"I saw him put his gun down beside him and I realized that was the only opportunity I was going to get, so I grabhed the gun, flipped it down the aisle as far as I could and I went for his throat with two hands.

"I hollered for help as loud as I could. The purser helped me hold him down. The man fought like a wild man. The assistant purser came along, grabbed the fire ax and started hitting him on the head. We managed to subdue him a bit and I called for tape and put the tape around his arms and legs.

Bomb Feared

"But he got one arm loose and tried to shove it into his pocket and said, 'I'll blow you up.' I assumed he had a small bomb in his coat pocket.

Senate sources said a new political campaign financing plan, based on tax deductions and a citizen's checkoff of a $1 contribution authority on his income tax return, might be unveiled this week as a proposed amendment to the tax hill.

Under the plan, the pominees of each major party could receive as much as $20 million for their campaigns in lieu of financing it from private sources. The money could not be used to pay off back dehts.

The proposal to block a $62 annual Social Security tax increase scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1 was made by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D., Minn. The increase does not result from a change in the Social Security tax rate, but rather from an increase in the amount of an individual's annual earnings subject to the Social Security payroll tax. This rises from the first $7,800 to the first $9,000.

The effect is to add $62 a year to the tax bill of those making $9,000 or above, with smaller increases for those in the $7,800to-$9,000 range. Those making provement in Jerusalem-Paris (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6) forces from South Vietnam. The statement, issued here by Hanoi's delegation to the peace talks, was prompted by the President's announcement Friday that the American offensive role had ended and that the rate of troop withdrawal in December and January would be increased by a third. The President also spoke of a residual force left in South Vietnam after the withdrswal of the main body as well as of contioned air attacks on the North. These two points appeared, as they have in the past, to have provoked anger on the part of Hanoi. Its statement declared that Mr. Nixon's policy consisted "of prolonging and extending the war" and said the only way the war could he ended was on the basis of the seven-point peace program presented last July. This calls for an American agreement to withdraw totally and to halt the Victnamization program, while North Vietnam and the Viet Cong would agree to release all American prisoners they hold. The two operations would be carried out and would end simultaneously.

Washington would also have to withdraw support from the present Saigon government and allow the formation of a coalition with Communist participation.

spacing out American troop withdrawals from South Vietnam through 1972 while he probes for diplomatic openings in Peking and Mcscow to help end the Indochina war on what he calls "honorable" terms.

To diplomatic observers that was the implication of the President's new troop-withdrawal etatement Friday.

In 1972 the President most thread his way through the volatile domestic climate of an election year and through two summit meetings with North Vietnam's two major allies, China and the Soviet Union. Those two ideological rivals can also have conflicting interests about how the war ends, whether or not they can influence North Vietnat. in negotiating an end to it. This makes the President's course doubly hazardous.

What the President appears to be gambling on is his ability to show his adversaries that he can ride out the domestic pressures on him and readily speed up or slow down the troop-withdrawal process,

Senste Demands

By raising the withdrawal rate to an average of 22,500 men a month, but limiting the troop pullbacks to just two months, the President showed how quickly all troops could be withdrawn if there is a negotiated agreement. That withdrawal rate, if sustained, could remove all men from Vietnam in just over six months. But Mr. Nixon specifically served notice that the withdrawal rate could just as casily be sharply reduced if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong try to take advantage of American troops.

Significantly, the President conceded virtually nothing to the current intensified demands in the Senate to set a six-month limit on total U.S. troop withdrawal, contingent only on the release of American prisoners,

Despite the Senate revolt on foreign ald, which resulted in part from the Nixon administration's opposition to restrictions on ald to Cambodia and Leos. the President conceded nothing there either. On the contrary, the President insisted, "Cambodia is the Nixon Doctrine in Its purest form," because Cam-bodians are being helped to help defend themselves, without American combat troops. The Pres-ident pointedly reminded his Senate critics, the majority of whom are Democratic liberals.

-President Nixon is guardedly nam" and that Presidents Kennedy and Johnson made deliberate "decisions" to commit U.S. forces But the most significant variation in the President's position as he outlined it Friday was his public broadening of the terms, and the implications, of a total U.S. troop withdrawal.

For months, starting in April, Mr. Nixon had tied a total withdrawal to "two important objectives": the release of all American prisoners held by North Vietnam and the achievement by the South Vietnamese of "the capaclty to defend themselves against a Communist takeover." or as he sometimes expressed it, "a reasonable chance to defend themselves ....

'Residual Forces

But the President's stress Frlday was on maintaining adequate "residual forces" and negotiating power to pursue the Vietnam-ization program, to obtain the release of all prisoners and to "achieve a cease-fire for all of Southeast Asia."

In remarks apparently intended especially for Peking's ears, the President emphasized that a negotiated withdrawal from Vietnam also means "withdrawal of forces stationed in other places in Southeast Asia or in the Asian theater that are directly related" to support of the Vietnam war. Mr. Nixon, unsurprisingly, was at his wariest in discussing the relationship of the Indochina war to his forthcoming visits to Peking and Moscow. On all sides this is a subject of supreme sensitivity because of North Viet-nam's suspicions that the United States seeks to negotiste an Indochina settlement without Hanoi's direct participation.

TAING KAUK, Cambodia, Nov. 14 (AP) .- For 18 days, Cambodian defenders of Rumlong crouched in bunkers with their wives and small children while North Vietnam's crack Ninth Division hammered them with rockets and mortars and showered them with nausca gas.

In the unrelenting slege, 200 out of 500 men belonging to the 14th Scout Battalion were wounded and, for want of proper medical treatment and drugs, more than 50 died of their wounds.

The loss of Rumlong, which leaves a four-mile stretch of Highway 6 in North Vletnamese hands, must be counted as the worst defeat Cambodia's armed forces have suffered this year. A description of the defeat was given today by a handful of survivors of Rumlong, 52 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

The garrison waited until nightfall before attempting to break out to the south and there were 300 men still on their feet. "They were walting for us with an ambush only one kilometer south of Rumlong," declared Senior Corp. Thong Bun My. "We scettered," Corp. Thong said calmly. Mr. Thieu's program also includes a salary increase for civil servants and soldiers of a flat 1,200 plasters a month-a move that will cost 22,000 million plasters (about 8 percent of the national hudget).

Nevertheless, the increase is not expected to avert discontent among wege earners, who say that prices are going up much faster than their pay. The program is also aimed at overhauling South Vietnam's in-

Import Tariff Revision

Finally, the system of import tariffs-hy which the government raises most of its revenue-is to be revised.

"Items which may be easily smuggled should not be taxed heavily," a confidential government report said. Vietnamese sources confirmed that the government, accepting its inability to control the snuggling of such items as watches and other small valuables, will enable them to be brought in legally with little or no duty.

"controllable" goods---Large, especially cars and other motor vehicles-will continue to be taxed heevlly,

Some of the new measures will require action by the National Assembly, but government sources said they can be implemented on an interim basis by decree.

Administration Opposal

In the voting Friday to raise the personal income-tax exemp-tion to $800 next year, the Senate overrode the wishes of the administration, as it did when it approved an extra 26 weeks of unemployment henefits in states with high unemployment. The amendments to the $15.5

billion tax-cut bill were adopted by votes of 40-37 and 47-31 as the Democrats pressed their drive to add henefits for those with low incomes. These votes were the first taken on the tax hill, which is expected to he before the Senate at least through this week. The personal exemption now is $650. Under the House-passed hill and the measure reported by the Senate Finance Committee, it would rise to $675 for 1971 and $750 for 1972 and subsequent years.

The proposal to raise the figure to $800 a person starting in 1972 was made by Sen. Vance Hartke. D. Ind., and adopted, 40-37, de-epite administration opposition. Aides to Sen. Russell Long, D., La., chairman of the Finance Committee, said it would save about $50 a year in taxes for a family of four with an adjusted gross income of about $16,000, and would reduce Treasury revenues by $1.9 billion. The extension of unemployment benefits was proposed by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D., Wash., and Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D., Conn. Most states with high unemployment-the industrial states, primarily-give 39 weeks of benefits now.

The provision will cost $471 million and will benefit about 900,-000 workers in Alaska, California, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Puerto Rico, Rhode Island, Vermont, Wash-ington and probably Oregon, Hawaii and Pennsylvania

U.S. Poverty Rising Faster In Suburbs Than in Cities

By Jack Rosenthal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (NYT). -Contrary to their popular image of picture-window affluence, suburbs accounted for more than half of last year's increase in the U.S. poverty population, according to new Census Bureau data. In a report issued over the weekend, the bureau confirmed an earlier advance report that the nation's poor totaled 25.5 million in 1970, an increase of 1.2 million over 1969. This is the first year-to-year increase since 1959. Metropolitan areas, including close suburbs, accounted for about 90 percent of the 1.2 million increase. The poverty population of central cities grew by roughly 400,000 to a total of 8.2 million.

650,000 Rise in Suburbs The one-year increase in suburbs, meanwhile, exceeded 650,000, or 61.5 percent of the rise, reaching a total of 5.2 million. Thus about 30 percent of the nation's poor now live in central cities and about 21 percent in the areas around them

The Stalemate Continues

With the drama that always results from an unscheduled news conference, President ident. Nixon has announced the impending withdrawal of another 45,000 U.S. soldiers from Vietnam before February. He also made official what has been apparent from the casnalty lists, that offensive operations by U.S. ground forces have ended.

Even though these moves will leave 139,000 Americans in Vietnam and the air action against the enemy is to continue. Mr. Nixon's statement might have been encouraging, except for one fatal flaw. It does not advance the prospects for a negotiated peace.

It is gnite possible that such a peace 1s. in fact, impossible, except on terms that would mean a political victory for North Vietnam. Despite all the indications from more or less private sources of Hanoi's willingness to make concessions, there has been no overt official indication of anything of the kind. A precondition imposed by the North has always been a new government in Saigon, one that presumably would make a mockery of any notions of free elections in South Vietnam or any continuance of independent existence of that part of Vietnam.

Unfortunately for Mr. Nixon, President Thien has already presented the world with his own mockery of free elections. To be sure, the people of South Vietnam-those permitted to vote, who are many more than have any effect upon the government in Hanoi-might have voted against him. They might, just conceivably, have forced him out of office. It is possible that a majority of South Vietnamese want Thieu as their pres-

But to assume this, one must take very much on faith-almost as much as those supporters of Hanoi who insist that the people of North Vietnam are happy with their rulers. In any case, the official American policy-that the United States is willing to abide by the free choice of the South Vietnamese people-has been disastrously undercut in Paris and before world opinion.

So, as Mr. Nixon very rightly said, one cannot foresee "a striking breakthrough" at the Paris talks which would permit the withdrawal of all American forces in line with the Niron administration's terms for such a withdrawal. Little seems likely to change-unless, indeed, the drying roads after the monsoons bring down another onslaught by the other side, some version of the Tet offensive to change the psychological if not strategic alignment of forces in the region.

If such an attempt should be made, and fail, or if the attrition of daily combat should bring on a weariness that the long war has not yet created in North Vietnam and among the Viet Cong, there might be negotiations. But the prospect for such a change is hardly bright. And for the United States, its military involvement may be diminishing in terms of men and casualties. but not in money, commitment or equipment. The ugly, costly stalemate continues.

China in the UN

entry on the United Nations is of interest, but far more important to watch as the Chinese representatives take up their posts is the effect of UN membership on China.

This impact cannot be dissociated from the effect of the new Chinese dialogue with the United States and, indirectly so far, with Japan. China's emergence from the selfenforced isolation of the Cultural Revolution already appears to have brought policy changes. A further evolution away from ideological extremism toward pragmatic accommodation with the real world may he ahead,

The nature of the 51-member delegation. sent to the UN encourages speculation in that direction. Two reputed moderates top the list of tan senior delegates. Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, leader of the mission to the General Assembly, and Ambassador to Canada Huang Hua, who will be Peking's permanent representative in New York.

The policies the delegation will follow probably have yet to be sorted out. Premier Speculation about the effect of Peking's with the United States and the Soviet Union undoubtedly will play a role.

> As the Chinese delegates study the issues and Peking is forced to make decisions, the very process of participating in the world assembly should in itself be a moderating influence on Chinese official thinking and decision-making. It is this prospect, as well as the moral right of a quarter of mankind to be represented in the world organization, that has prompted us to favor the entry of Peking for the past decade and to welcome its incoming delegates now.

WASHINGTON. - In the last for Dr. Elisberg's speech before few months, the administration has been putting the cons on the Washington reporters again, and there is a lot of talk around here, most of it a little melodramatic, about some dark administration plot to intimidate or discredit its critics in the press and the networks.

Ever since the publication of the Pentagon papers, the Justice Department, instead of quilting when it was behind, has been using the FBI to try to prove that there was some kind of conspiracy against the government in the publication of these papers.

This is understandable. The government has the right and even the duty to protect the privacy of its official papers, but its methods are astonishing. It has demanded by subpoena the transcript of an off-the-record talk by Daniel Ellsberg made to lations. a private meeting of the members of the Council on Foreign Relations in New York. The FBI has also been inquiring into the private records and even the bank accounts of Neil Sheehan, who broke the Pentagon papers story in The New York Times, and into the private records of his wife as well. This has been going on now for over three months, while a grand jury in Boston is summoning Vietnam critics out of Harvard and MIT. and friends of Mr. Sheehan to tell what they newsbaper's know about Dr. Ellsberg and Mr. Sheehan. And the habit of using police methods in these delicate government-press relations seems to be growing. For example, William Beecher of The New York Times wrote a report on the progress of the U.S.-Soviet arms talks late last summer, and the administration has actually been giving liedetector tests to some of its own officials who are suspected of being the source of his informa-

VIENNA -The contemporary dream most mentioned nowadays in Europe is that the non-Communist and Communist blocs respectively symbolized by NATO and the Wassaw Pact will melt away and that the lands thus freed from entanging ties will somehow draw closer in a con-vergence of political and economic theories

Clearly the nations that would. most obviously benefit would be those which belong to neither coalition, neutrals such as Swe-den, Switzerland and Austria or quasi neutrals like Finland and Yugoslavia. But here in Vienna, at any rate, there is no self-deception about the chances of this pleasing prospect. Bruno Kreisky, Austria's Social Democratic Chancellor and previously Foreign Minister, says: "After what happened in Czecho-slovskis, three years ago I am totally convinced that there is but little room for political de-velopment inside the East European Communist world. "There is always some chance for more national identification inside these countries as in the cases of Hungary and Poland. But there will only be as much freedom in the real sense as there is freedom inside the Soviet Union itself. Nationalism, yes, to a degree; but political freedom is tied to Soviet developments.

'An Illusion'

"It is therefore an illusion to talk of really doing away with bloos because free democratic countries, and controlled Communist countries will continue to exist in Europe. And it is also an Illusion to talk about ideological convergence. This means nothing. "Instead it is more practical to face the real situation and to try and encourage lessening tension between the two systems. No-body can really tall today what practical coexistence will lead to because we haven't had it yet. Certainly things would not get worse. Cold war, like hot war, serves to petrify political systems. Only peace is creative." While heartily favoring reduced tensions and continued increase of East-West contacts, Kreisky wishes to avoid basing policy on fictions. Thus he holds that the popular theory of "convergence" is wrong.

He acknowledges that the Soviet Union increasingly uses modern economic methods and marketing techniques but says this is only to make its own ideology more efficient. In ma. sense does it lead to political parallelism with Western methods. Moreover, he describes the kind of planned economy employed in Communist lands as 'a failed myth."

Kreisky concludes that the with fact.

In these sircumstances, it is unlikely that Peking knows precisely what its delegation will do on the 100-odd resolutions and issues pending before the General Assembly and Security Council, Debating and voting in the world forum is not as simple a process as making propaganda pronouncements on Peking radio.

Like other major countries, the Chinese will have to balance various interests and pressures. Propaganda may predominate in votes on some colonial issues pressed by the more vocal nonaligned countries. But Peking is likely to be circumspect if the India-Pakistan conflict comes before the Security Council and in such General Assembly debates as those ahead on the Middle East, disarmament and the law of the sea. On these matters, the triangular relationship due in part to administration measures that arc exacerbating a growing new rivalry between the two nations in the economic sphere.

These include the new agreement forced on Japan to limit textile exports to the United States and President Nixon's 10 percent import surcharge. At the very time the Senate was voting to eliminate the Okinawa nettie, Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally jr. was in Tokyo pressing the resentful Japanese for new economic concessions.

The Okinawa pact, which still requires ratification by the Japanese Diet, does not put an end to Japanese-American differences, but it is a necessary step toward patting relations on a firmer footing to deal with the problems of a new Pacific era. This pragmatic accommodation to mutual interests offers a promising guide to the future cooperation which is essential for the security and prosperity of both nations.

Rhodesia has just celebrated six years of independence. The very sanctions which Toolish people imagined would bring Rhodesia to its knees have resulted in that country becoming self-sufficient in many manufactures. Now comes the news that the American Congress favors breaking the UN blockade to purchase Rhodesian chrome. Sir Alec Douglas-Home, Britain's foreign secretary, and Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith will meet as equals. The hope must be that they will reach a solution beneficial to all Rhodesians, African and European alike. Whether the prejudices of certain members of Parliament at Westminster are satisfied is a matter of no importance.

South Vietnam's Economy

Vietnamization progresses faster than expected. Mr. Laird's optimism, however, has limits. There is a big black epot in the picture of the situation he has just depicted, a spot not of a military but of an economic nature. South Vietnam, he said, won't be in a position to do without American economic aid for a very long time.

It is thus indispensable that senators who last week refused to vote for the administration's foreign aid bill reconsider their positions. The secretary of defense admitted he had given President Thien firm assurances in this respect. In so doing he may have been led to promise more than can be delivered.

November 15, 1921 NEW YORK-There were wild scenes in the Town Hall last night when the police prevent-ed a lecture on "Birth Control, Is It Moral?" and arrested Mrs. Margaret Sanger and Miss Mary Windsor, who tried to make speeches to an audience of several thousand persons despite the orders of the police. The two women were charged by the police with disorderly conduct, but when the case came before the judge he dismissed the charge,

The Schorr Case

And the latest object of the administration's concern is Daniel Schorr of the Columbia Broadcasting System, a tough-minded and admirably nosy old pro, who has been raising some interesting questions about the mystifying contradictions and "clarifications" in the administration's social and economic policies and has had the audacity to suggest that the reelection of Mr. Nixon is not essential to the well-being of the Republic.

Thereupon Mr. Schorr suddenly discovered not only that the White House was protesting to his boss at CBS about his reporting but that the FBI was questioning his neighbors and colleagues about his personal life and professional qualifications. When this was made public, the White House explained that Mr. Schorr was being considered for an important government job, which he had never beard of and the White House refused to identify. The laughter that greated all this is still rattling through Washington. So, obviously, there is something pretty fishy in all this, but probably less than meets the eye. When odd or mysterious things happen in Washington, and you are asked to choose between two possible explanations-a conspiracy or inefficiency complicated by stupidity—it is usually wise to bet on inefficiency and stupidity. The whole thrust of these intimidating investigations shows the most abysmal ignorance or misunderstanding of what a reporter's function is. What is done with that information is not the reporter's responsibility but the

Mr. Sheehan and Mr. Schorr are only agents of the institutions for which they work, and to single them out and harass them does not really help the government but merely stirs up the whole communications fraternity, which, under attack, and only then, is a kind of mntual aid society.

It is easy to understand the zeal of these anonymous image-makers in the White House. They see the terrible dilemmas before the President and resent the criticism of his policies, but one wonders about their judgment, their secrecy and their immunity from questioning. The Washington press corps was here before they all arrived and will be around long after they have gone back to commercial huckstering. It has had to deal with the manipulation of pros on the White House staff from Roosevelt to Johnson, all of whom were at least available for questioning, but President Nixon is cerved, if that is the word, by some key self-righteous amatours who have forgotten what destroyed President Johnson and what Mr. Nixon himself said on his way to the White House.

"It's time," Mr. Nixon said in the 1968 campaign, "we once sgain had an open administration -open to ideas from people, and open with its communication with the people-an administration of open doors, open eyes, and open minds.

My role in this gigantic enterprise is only that of a witness, a modest witness, who has only one valuable, thing to testify about and it is. I think, a unique quality of experience-underwater searching with companions for more than 30 years.

We believe that the damage done to the ocean in the last 20 years is somewhere between 30 percent and 50 percent, which is a frightening figure. And this damage carries on at very high speed-to the Indian Ocean, to the Red Sea, to the Mediterranean, to the Atlantic. Our latest observations in the Pacific. in Micronesia and New Caledonia and in the Fiji Islands are even more frightening. Everywhere around the world the coral reefs are disappearing at a very great rate, to such an extent we are not sure we will see anything like what we know now.

In New Caledonia, for example, the destruction is due partly to pollution, partly due to fishing, and partly also by mannal destruction. There are teams of Tahitian divers with crowbars destroying an average of six miles of reef a week. They have discovered shells inside the corals, but they have to destroy the coral to find live shells today. They are sent to museums and shops that sell them to the public all around the world. So the demand of the public is responsible indirectly for this constant destruction of the oceans all around the world.

This is just an example among thousands. I was very much impressed by a sentence in a book blast. At the top yon showed the seismograph sheet, frighteningly by the French writer Fenechelon. Speaking of the scientists measobscure, followed by the headline "Cannikin Blast Feit 200 Miles-5 uring while the destruction goes 00, she says, "They measure, we weep."

. . . . One may wonder why so little care has been given to the ocean. The reason is very simple. People bave thought that the legendary amensity of the ocean was such that man could do nothing against such a gigantic force. Well, now we know that the size of the ocean, although it covers a great amount of surface, the real volume of the ocean is very small compared to the volume of the earth.

In publication, in conferences, in international units the matters are generally divided into air poliution, land pollution and water pollution. In fact, there is only one pollution because every single thing, every chemical whether in the air or on land already in the sea. They will all end up in the sea finally. Another reason for damaging of the ocean or for the deterioration of the ocean is overfishing. I made some forecasts two years, ago saying that the amount of. life in the ocean is decreasing rapidly. As outlined by Mr. Hackett, a former Foreign Service officer. there is a difference of opinion between members of the embass staff and Greek opposition lead-ers in their estimates of the American potential for altering Greek politics.

"Even those staff members most critical of the ambassador's past role see the embassy as a passive player in the increasingly depressing Greek drama," the roport says.

On the other hand, Greek opposition leaders feel that "the American government exerts a considerable (most say decisive) infinence on the longevity of the regime."

Hitler's Carpet Takes a Beating

At London Sale as Bids Falter LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP) .- Adolf Hitler wouldn't have been amused. Nobody in London wanted to buy his best carpet yesterday.

A magnificent Persian carpet made for the fuehrer had been expected to fetch £100,000, when it was auctioned.

But the bidding struggled up to a mere £11,500 and sluck there. The stunned auctioneers withdrew it from sale.

Samuel Wennek, the auctioneer and an authority on Oriental carpets, told bidders: "We cannot cthically sell this carpet for such a ridiculously low price."

The carpet is known as the Sultanabad. Eight craftsmen working 12 hours a day took seven years to complete the 1,008square-foot, half-ton masterpiece.

Auctioneer Rippon Boswell said that it was one of 22 commissioned by the Nazis in 1937 for Hitler's Berlin Chancellery. They were never delivered because, by the time they were finished, the Third Reich was in no condition to take delivery. Tha rugs went into storage.

U.S. Economy Ends Its Big Sleep

By A. H. Raskin

NEW YORK (NYT).-The Big Sleep is over, After 90 days of frozen wages, prices and rents Americans moved this weekend into Phase 2 of President Nixon's attempt to stop the mflationary spiral-a phase in which they will have to learn to live with governmental controls over pay checks, profit margins and most other aspects of economic activity. The basic guidelines for this return to the kind of regulation the country experienced in World War II, and again in the Korean war, were set down last week by the two semi-autonomous boards the President appointed as policysetters and monitors of the stabilization effort. One was the Pay Board, made up of five mem-bers each from labor, industry and the public; the other was the Price Commission, with seven members, all from the public.

Both groups came up with ground rules considerably tongher than either labor or business had expected, rules designed to meet the Nixon aim of cutting inflation in half by the end of 1972. "A lot of it is straight out of Rube Goldberg, but we'll do our damnedest to make it work," said one

The administration sought to beat Capitol Hill to the punch increases. Just where the cutoff on taking workers at the bottom line will be drawn has not yet tation inside the board is that no one will blow the whistle on increases up to 7 percent. Among the board's public and industry members there is a good deal of ambivalence on how hard to press on deferred increases bcyond that figure. The dilemma 15 thot the number of workers getting increases in 1972 under old contracts is more than twice as large as the number affected by new negotations. The board sces no way to hold the line on new contracts if biz boles are punched in the ceiling by old ones. In a vain effort to achieve unanimity on their formula, the public members sought to persuade the unionists that it provided chough elbow room to take care of future increases due such pivotal groups as suto workers. stcel workers, teamsters and railroad workers. They also indicated willingness to bend the standards in strikes on the docks and in the coal mines, where nerotiators have been dealing in telephone numbers. The upshot was a sudden reversal of positions in which the un:on delegation charged the rest of the board with seeking to sell out the interests of "the little guy" by making a deal to protect the giants of unionism who had plenty of muscle in their nwn right. Now everybody in the board is loudly proclaiming his concern for the little

United Fress Internationsl.

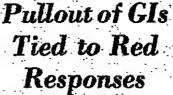

The second limitation is that the effect of higher prices cannot be to increase a business's margin of profit, measured as a percentage of sales. The rules leave companies free to make more moncy by expanding their sales volume but not by marking np their rate of profit on each item they sell.

This indirect form of profit control was designed as a partial answer to isbor's clamor for 'equality of sacrifice" in the antiinflation effort. As further evidence of its determination to take a tough stance, the Price Commission announced that it would move vigorously on Mr. Nixon's mandate to convert into price cuts any "windfall" profits employers might derive from the enforcement of wage controls. Ford. Chrysler and American Motors let it be known that they right aver, but the commission indicated that the freeze would hold for at least 30 more days for these companies and most others with annual sales of $100 million or more. In reflection of the administration's belief that effective control depends on kceping n sharp cyc on the industrial whales and letting the minnows swim relatively unnoticed in their wate, the cconomy has been split into three layers for control purposes. Thirteen hundred companies in the over $100-million sales bracket, accounting for 45 percent of the nation's sales volume. need advance permission to increase Quarteriy reports on prices. prices, costs and profits will be required of 1,100 other firms with annual sales between $50-million and $100-million. The remaining 10 million enterprises, with half of all regulated sales, are expected to conform to the commission's rules but will be subject only to spot checks. Items ranging from wigs to used cars and covering almost one-fifth of the average family's living costs are outside the scope of controls. In a news conference on Friday, the President conceded that some bulge in prices is certain in the immediate post-freeze period, but he volced confidence that the rules set down by the twn boards were sound and that public support would make the program succeed.

Now Nixon Stresses Peace Tall

INSIGHTS/SIDELIGHTS

WASHINGTON (NYT) - Not W long before President Nixon showed up to substitute for the showed up to substitute for the White House press screetary, Ron Ziegler, at the 4 p.m. briefing on Friday, U.S. park police hanked away another batch of the antiwar demonstrators who kept flopping on the White House side-walk all week to play dead-Vietnamese dead.

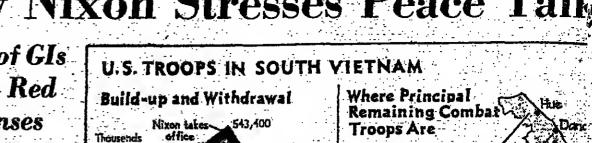

The President announced continuation of the egonizingly slow withdrawals he has been making since inheriting a force of 540,000 American soldiers in Vietnam nearly three years ago. He sched-uled the pullout of 45,000 mora men in December and January and, although Mr. Nizon termed the withdrawal rate "substantially increased" over the current rate of 14,200 men a month, the next phase will last only two months and leave 139,000 U.S. troops still in the war zone on Feb. 1. Taken together with his previous with-drawals, since they began in July, 1969, this will put the average monthly rate of combat force withdrawai at barely 13,000.

The significance of Mr. Nizon's intest troop announcement lay not in the continuation of the progress but in the rationale he used in arguing for going slow. Suddenly, intriguingly, the President demonstrated on Friday a reoccupation with negotiation as the route to peace.

Negotiation Stressed

"It is essential," he said, "as we get closer to the and, if we are going to maintain any negotiating leverage, that the with-drawal periods, in my opinion, be comewhat shorter." The explanatioo that a simble enough force of Americans must be kept in Vietnam as a bargaining chip was not new-but the emphasis on it was. Mr. Nixob even referred to the announcement itself as "somewhat of an indication that we have not given up on the nerotistion front."

He will press for a settlement because "that is the track on which we eventually are going to

In quite a different way and, for the first time, without resort-ing to the televised dramatics he has used to sell his Vietnam pol-icies to the American people, Mr. Nixon appeared for an unscheduled news conference to make very much the same point: Few Americans are dying in combat now, but Vietnamese, Laotians and Cambodians are, and it is time to stop the carnage in Indochlna.

The Feb. 1 deadline the Pres-ident set for deciding what he should do next is far enough into 1972 to come conceivably. after his journey to Peking, for which he has yet to set a date. Mr. Nixon cautioned against speculating on what China-or the Soviet Union, which be also will visit next year-might do to persuade Hanoi to bargain. Yet he pointedly welcomed "any assistance" from either Communist host.

Peace talks

The change in Mr. Nixon's at-titude toward negotiations, which has yet to become evident at the Parts peace taiks but could become manifest through "other channels" that the President keeps mentioning without being precise, is at least as much a reflection of the more relaxed attitude toward the war here at home as it is to new winds of East-West diplomacy.

When the President took his withdrawal charts on television. and reflected on military successes and Vietnamization progrees last April, he feced an aodience restive about the invasions of Cambodia and Laos and sickened by the events of My Lel, On Friday, however, Mr. Nizon felt confident enough about the casing of domestic tensions, made evident by the failure of the antiwar movement to produce more than 2,500 demonstrators for a "mass" falls here a week ago, to skip the televised address route altogether.

Air War Threat

The war still possesses political risks for Mr. Nixon, however. Its opponents are focusing how on the appalling human hatoc wrought by the 70.000 tons of bombs being dumped by American plicis on Indochina each nionth. By the end of this year. the United States will have dropped over an area ho larger than Texas three times the tonnage of all the aerial munitions he took to Republican o creased Communist inflitration would compel him not only to: New York and Chicago continue the air strikes but to day to raise $5 million step them up." Such talk did not sit well with congressional doves who promised to continue, perhaps to step up, their own effort to end American involvement by legislating a date for total withdrawal. Leading Democrats like the Senate majority leader. Mike Manafield of Montana, worried aloud that Mr. Nixon seemed bent on keeping a residual force of 40,000 or 50,000 : men within I have made I have kep date and that it is u pretty good example of v.

In broad design, the new yardsticks are the estence of sim-plicity. On the price side, their objective is to put a 3.5 percent lid on the increase in prices over the next year. Wages are to be kept in balance with this goal by means of a 5.5 percent ceiling on pay increases-a figure that neatly fuses the projected 2.5 percent increase hike in overall prices and the normal 3 percent annual growth in national productivity. the source of all real improvement in living standards.

Here is what the two boards did and a few of the minefields they still have to traversc:

Wages

It was the biggest collective bargaining table in history, with the final settlement important not only to the 19 million workers with union cards but to the 60 million nthers outside union ranks. A series of acrimonious sessions, in which the union representatives accused their Pay Board colleagues of "sinful" disregard of the sanctity of labor-manage-ment contracts, wound up with labor on the losing side of a 10-5 vote for a middle-of-the-road formula sponsored by the public members.

The formula sets the 5.5 percent figure as the guidepost for higher wages and fringe benefits in new agreements or in the pay practices of nonunion establishments. Tha orbit of wage curbs. Its Cost of Living Council decreed that wages of the working poorthose earning less than the federal minimum of $1.60 an hour -should be exempt from any restriction. The council sizo gave a go-aliezd to begin congressionally approved military pay increases well above the 5.5 percent limit.

Prices

Still more boles in the wage

"How in the world can they lay down an encyclopedic standard for the whole economy, which has more to do with costs and profit margins than it does with actual prices, and then decide that through some magic the sum total of millions of price changes over the course of a year is going to average out to not more than 2.5 percent?" That was the mystificd reaction of one prominent New York wholesaler to the Price Commission's official disclosure of its plan for keeping a lid on prices in the post-freeze period. What caused the puzzlement was that the commission made no attempt to fix criteria for adjustments within a single company or industry. Instead, it ruled that no price increases of any kind would be allowed unless they could be justified by an actual rise in costs. Even then two other restrictions will have to be satisfied before any price can be guy, but nothing is clear about raised. The first is that any have success in getting our prisoners back." If the Communists were to step up their inflitration of South Vietnam, posing a threat to remaining Americans, devastation from American air strikes would be stepped up in turnbut a negotiated settlement would bring the "total withdrawal" of ground troops, "discontinuation" of air strikes, even "withdrawal of forces stationed in other places" in Asia supporting the war cffort,

The President dusted off the possibility of a bargained peace in two of the 42 paragraphs in his last, televised troop declaration in April. On Friday he not only emphasized negotiations throughout his responses to reporters' questions, but he also announced that a decision on future withdrawals would be based in part on "any progress that may have been made" in securing the release of American POWs and arranging a cease-fire "for all of Southeast Asia."

The flooded terrain in Southesat Asia is orying up. Mr. Nixon wants to determine before making another troop decision how many Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are padding down the Ho Chi Minh Trall-both as a gauge to measure the threat of the diminishing American force and for indications of Commonist willingness to tone down the conflict as a prelude to ending it.

The champagne-think champagne Cliquot in East of Airica!-Lafitte, La Rose, Bur-gundy, and Bordeaux were of first-rate quality, and the meek and lowly eyes of the fathers were not a little brightened under the vinous influence. Ah! those fathers understand life, and appreciate its duration. Their festive board drives the Mukunguru (African jung's fever) from their dcors, while it soothes the gloom and isolation which strikes one with awe as one emerges from lighted room and plunges the into the depths of darkness of an African night, enlivened only by the wearying monotone of the frogs and crickets, and the distant uluintion of the hypena. . . I was to devote all my energy to lead the Expecition as quickly as possible from Engamoyo. The Masika, or rainy season, would soon be on me. This I knew was a thing to dread. A country whose surface soil is called black mud in fine weather, what can it be called when 40 deys' rain beat on it, and feet of pagazis (bearers) and donkeys make paste of it?

On the 21st of March, the fifth caravan, led by myself, left Bagamoyo, with "Forward!" for its mot du guet. [Four previous groups, comprising a total cf. 146 men, had left earlier, split up beceuse the native chiefs would be more likely to exact vast tribute from the enlire party, were it to travel together.] Our caravan is composed of 28 pagazis, including the kirangozi, or guice; 12 soldiers under Mbarak Bombay, in charge of 17 donkeys and their loads; Selim, my boy interpreter, in charge of the donkey and cart and its load; one cook and sub, who is also to be tailor and ready hand for all, and leads the grey Lorse [soon to die, along with Stanley's mount, after being bit-ten by the tsetse files]; Shaw, rearguard and overseer, who is mounted on a good riding-donkey, and wearing a canoe-like topee ond sea-boots; and lastly, on a aplendid bay horze, myself, called Bana Mkuba," the "big master," by my people-the vanguard, the reporter, the thinker, and leader of the Expedition . . .

turbid Kingani River, The famous for its hippopotami, was reached in short time, but we were halted point-blank by a narrow sluice having an immeasurable depth of black mud. The only available way of crossing it in safety was by means of a bridge. So we set to work, there being no help for it, with American axes-the first of their kind made quickly, for where the civilized white is found, a difficulty must vanish ....

A half mile in that direction through a jungle of giant reeds and extravagant climbers brought us to the ferry, where the animals had to be again unloadedverily, I wished that I possessed the pawer of Meses with his magic rod ... Kingwere, the canoe paddler, brought his huge hollowed tree skilfully over the whirling eddies to where we stood. I sat down on a condemned cance to amuse myzelf with the hippoootami by peppering their thick skuils with my No. 12 smoothbore . . .

On the 8th of April we continued our journey, and arrived at Msuwa This march will be remembered by our caravan as the most fatiguing of all, though the distance was but ten miles. It was one continuous jungle. Khamisi, for his desertion and attempted robbery, could not be pardoned without first suffering punishment... I ordered him to be bound, and considering that by his act the pagezis had suffered in name, I ordered that each of the pagazis and soldiers and Shaw should punish bim with one blow each of the "Great Master's" donkey whip, which was accordingly done, to poor Khamisi's crying sorrow.

Following the Ungerengeri Vailey, we passed close under the wali of the capital of Useguhha -Simbamwenni, the "Lion City." The first view of the walled town at the western foot of the Urpgurn montains was one that wa did not anticipate to meet in Eastern Africa. Through a ride of 950 miles in Persia I never met a town outside of the great cities better fortified than Simbamwenni. In Persia the fortifications were of mud; those of Simbomwenni are of stone, pierced with two rows of loopholes for musketry. The area of the town is about half a square mile, its plan being quadrangular. [Two days later]. I was, for the first time made aware that my acclimatization in the ague-breeding swamps of Arkansas was poweriess against the Mukunguru of East Africa. The premonitory symptoms were feit in my system at 10 a.m. First, general lassitude prevailed, with a disposition to drowsiness; secondly came the spinal ache loins, ascended the vertebrae, and extended around the ribs, until it reached the shoulders where it settled into a weary pain; thirdly came a chilliness which was followed by a heavy head, swimming eyes, and throbbing temples. with vague vision which distorted and transformed all chiects in sight. This issted until 10 p.m., and the Mukurungu left me, much prostrated in strength.

"On those fronts it was a battle of ideas and one has to fight against ideas with other ideas. The FLN had propaganda agencies throughout the world and to fight them France would have had to counterattack against their arguments, to point out that the FLN was a minority and most of the Algerian people wished to remain French. It would have been possible, but very expensive and very difficult. "The decision to give up Algeria was exclusively a political one, made by Gen. de Gaulle. Militarily we could have remained there indefinitely." Gen. Massu sees the pressures put upon the French government during the Algerian crisis as similar to those the U.S. govern-ment is now facing over Vietnam. But while he fully supported the French actions in Algeria, he feels that military intervention in Vietnam was a mistake,

In 1956, he says, shortly after being appointed the head of French forces in West Germany, he met with a U.S. commander, who asked his assessment of the situation in Vietnam, "I was forced to tell him." Gen: Massu says, "that I did not envisage a favorable conclusion to the war. He listened to me politely and in the following months he didn't ask me any more questions."

One major error Gen. Massu fews the U.S. government has made as a result of outside pressures was to try Lt. William Calley in public for crimes committed in the My Lai massacre. "I think a thing like that," he says.

"an individual error, should be dealt with within the military, at the divisional level. When you go higher you affect the morale of an army and an army's morale is an important element in its arsenal:

"Moreover, I think one had to understand the context within which Calley acted. It is imposalternative. "It didn't sible to wage war without hatred pleasure," he says, "but and sometimes, when a soldier is seized with a desire for vengeance, his hatred is greater than usual. It is a feeling that can

Others say Mr. Brezhnev's rhetoric may have been only "cosmetics," designed to ease fears which spread through the entire Soviet bloc last winter after workers rioted and struck in Poland. The actual statistics of the new five-year plan presented at that congress show only a modest 6 percent rise in consumer-goods production planned over the fiveyear period.

Military Hegemony

What the Soviet leadership must overcome, the analysts say, is not just a powerful military establishment, but the leaders' own tendency to rely on military judg-

There is a striking apparent absence of professional civilian strategists to challenge military thinking.

"The decisions get reviewed at the top by the civilian leadership." says a U.S. expert on Soviet af-fairs. Thomas Wolfa of the Rand Corp., but mostly on economic and political grounds, "with the es-sential technical arguments made by the military." Mr. Wolfe reflects the dilemma of the Kremlinologists in trying to determine which way the Russians will turn.

"Twe heard these same propositions many times before. In the later Khrushchev years, when there were many pressures analogous to today, there was a lot of conjecture that Kbrushchev meant to move the Soviet Union in a fairly radical new direction. Perhaps ha really meant to, and perhaps that was one reason why he didn't survive politically. But the net effect of the Soviet experience is that one ought to be fairly conservative about expectradical shifts in overall ing priorities." On the other hand, referring to the seeds of potential discontent, Mr. Wolfe says the Soviet leaders "are all political animals and in their world the worst thing that could happen would be to get a group of discontented intellectuals that would somehow hook up with a base of mass discontent over material things."

The Wrong Pill-$12,000 for Baby

PLYMOUTH, Mich., Nov. 14 (AP) .- A woman who thought she had been taking birth-control pills for six months-until she became pregnant-has accepted a $12,000 out-of-court settlement from the druggist who had been supplying her with tranquilizers hy mistake. Mr. and Mrs. John Troppi agreed to the settlement Wednesday after five days of a jury trial, The suit asking $250,000 from Dearborn druggist Frank Scarf was filed in September, 1965; a month after the couple's eighth child, Marty, was born.

was at the same time the end of the trail for too many, for too long.

It was the terminus of the "Slave Route," whence countless thousands of black men from the interior, captured or sold by their chiefs to the Arab traders, were shipped to Zanzibar and resold, for a handsome profit, to buyers representing most of the "civilized" countries outside Africa.

The path through forest and scrub, once extending all the way back to Ujiji, ends on a fine, sandy beach just east of the village whose name means "the place where hope is abandoned." Today, a dozen black children are splashing in the gentle surf of the Indian Ocean; two women, toting huge loads of firewood from up the heach, smile pleasantly as they return to their compact clay-walled homes; a dhow cruises offshore, followed by a flock of swooping birds.

The scene is ldyllic, yet one keeps remembering the slaves. Then one reflects on how far the world has come in only one hundred years, and the cloud lifts from the mind. It is time to get back to work.

Bagamoyo is also noted today as the repository of more monu-ments to history than the Smithsonian Institution. East Africans being a people eager to please, at least 40 dwellings of widely varying architectural sophistication are pointed out as the true, genuine, authentic and only house where Bwana Stanley rested his bones for the trials ahead.

And though he unaccountably ails to mention it in his diary, explorer-journalist almost the certainly spent the greater part of his first day ashore climbing in and out of his boats; how else could one explain the sworn testimony of two dozens Tanzanian teen-agers, each with his own sandy turi staked out, that upon this very spot debarked the white man on Feb. 6, 1871?

Hassan, Lyn and I visited the Jesuit mission of the St. Esprit (where Stanley did indeed spend some time) at lun htime and sit down at the table so as not to oblige the good fathers to interrupt their midday repast. After my plate is plied high with viands-to refuse to dine with my hosts would be ungracious, I reason-I announce my own mis-

Even if you're not going with us all the way, think of the "round the world" extras you get on a "round the world" voyage.

First of all, since it's our 10th anniversary on the high seas, you save 25 % on the first part of the voyage on all categories (from Le Havre to New York minimum FF1,632).

But money isn't everything. You get a Jules Verne ball, informal talks by Claude Dauphin about "Philias Fogg rediscovering America", concerts, etc.

And of course if you'd like to go to the ends of the earth with us, we may be able to arrange it (88 days World Cruise minimum price FF 27,220).

Nov. 14 (IHF) .- The a plateau, balting the recent dollar denominated rapid decline.

> In fact, it may have been too rapid. Both Barcleys Bank International and General Telephone & Electronics had guarter-point cuts on their coupons from the levels indicated when the issues were announced-as had Esso and TRW immediately before them.

But the cuts, decided upon early in the week, were announc-ed at mid-week, by which time the market had begun to soften. In addition, some bankers believe 8 14 percent for triple-B-rated GT&E while triple-A-rated Esso bonds pay 8 percent is just a little pushy.

The $15 million GT&E issue was priced at 99, meaning a yield to maturity of 8.37 percent. The final terms on the Barclays issue was 8 1/4 percent for the $30 million of 15-year bonds and 7 3/4 percent for the $20 million of 7-year poles. Both were priced at par. Admittedly, the terms initially presented for any Eurobond are alwayo qualified with "expected" or "indicated"-leaving room for change. But this is frowned on in this retail-oriented market, where banks have to hustle back to clients to find out whether they are still interested in the changed conditions. In practice, banks are reluctant to alter their initial orders so they stay with the issue, grumbling that they were sucked in under false pre-

In this very coupon-conscious market, eyes are now turned on the new $60 million, 15-year Shell offering to be priced Wednesday. Economic Indicators

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 .- Prices on the American Stock Exchange and in the Over-the-Counter market fell sharply last week as both markets turned in their worst performances in months.

One brokec commented that most investors and institutions remained on the sidelines in a "buyees strike" and with such a scarcity of blds any selling resulted in big declines. surate declines in other leading Stocks on the Amex opened lower on Monday and expanded their declines throughout the week. It was the same story in Coooter trading except on Wednesday, when that market just barely managed to post a slight gain.

Turnover in both markets dropped. Volume in Counter stocks fell to 31,600,200 shares from 33,308,700 shares in the preceding week, On the excharge, volume eased to 14,046,995 shaces from 16,561,810 shares the week before.

This was the second consecutive week that furnover in the Counter market more than noubled that on the Amex. Volume in Counter issues has only been available during the last two weeks for most of the 2,900 issues in the NASDAQ system. NASDAQ is an acroaym for National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations.

The American Enchange's price index finished on Friday at 24.10, down 0.44 from the close of the preceding week.

The most heavily traced issue on the Amex last week were tha warrants of Trans World Airlines, which fell 1 1 4 to 20 5/8 on a turnover of 272,400 shares.

In second place was Syntex, which closed uochanged at 68 1 8 with 218,200 shares changing hends. The NASDAQ industrial index for the Over-the-Counter market closed on Friday at 102.40, down 1.25 points from the preceding Friday. A total of 1.745 issues declined during the week while 531 stocks advanceá.

Among the bigger losers were Medironics off 3, Kellwood down and Anto-Train and Associated Coca-Cola Bottlers each off 2. Most of the land developments and home building concerns also eased. Hallcraft Homes tumbled 4, Horizon Corp. was off 3 and the Westchester Corp. dropped 2 points.

Insurance issues lost ground in active trading. Bank stocks also eased on moderate trading.

jobs, which would not in any evont have been lost," the survey found, "because either the supply of such components or products was being lost to foreign competitors or more jobs would have been lost if the United States company had not been able to keep the final product competitive by reducing costs through the import of certain kcy components."

Answering another assertion by critics of foreign investments, the survey said that technology transferred to foreign affiliates of United States companies was considered to be "most highly advanced" only in one or two cases. In all the rest, the technology sent abroad to permit components to be manufactured and returned to the parents was "Intermediata" or "low level."

While the question of foreign investments will be an important part of the deliberations at the three-day convention, major attention will also be paid to President Nixon's new economic program, particularly with regard to the import surcharge and the freeing of the dollar from gold. Mr. Norris said the council welcomed the recognition in the new program "that, to achieve a sustainable balance in United States international payments, we must develop an integrated program to deal with domestie and international monetary, fiscal and trade policies in one package."

Canada recently determined its representation in the 1972 World Team Olympiad. An Ontario foursome led by Bruce Gowdy and including Duncan Phillips, Bill Crissey and Gerry Charney won a decisive victory in a 108-deal final playoff at St. Agatha, Quebec, on Oct. 25. The group will join Eric Murray and Sam Kehela of Toronto, who received squad invitations without having to compete in the trials.

The freakish deal shown in the diagram contributed to the result of the playoff match. At both tables, the contract was six hearts, with East deterred by the vulnerability from bidding seven clubs. From East's angle, that contract was likely to fail by four tricks, or 1,100 pointsgreater than the value of the hypothetical North-South slam.

Crissey and Charney were North and South when the auction shown occurred. After a quiet opening bid of one heart and a response of one spade, East crowded the anction by jumping to five clubs. South's freakish distribution justified his bid of five diamonds; and North, made an imaginative jump to aix hearts.

North had judged correctly that his partner must be short in clubs, and judged that all his cards would be significant. As it turned out the spade honors were useless to South, but North might not have bid the slam without them. It was hard for him to appreciate that his diamond ace and heart jack were enough to bid slam,

After a club lead, Charney ruffed and made the key play of the heart ace. He was willing to give up on the heart finesse, as he expected West to have the diamond king. Thus the fall of the heart king was welcome development. South rightly played safe by drawing trumps. He had to lose a diamond trick eventually, but made the slam

In the replay, West made the same chub lead against the same contract. But after ruffing South made the error of attempting an immediate diamond finesse; East promptly ruffed and led another chib, promoting a trump trick for his partner to set the slam,

THIS history of cross-Channel right have they got t by 13 British and French historians, who certainly don't agree all the time, reminded me of the little old lady who was asked on French radio what she thought of the Commons vote last month to enter the Common Market. "Tout ca c'est très beau," (all that'e very well), said she, "but it won't give us back Jeanne d'Arc."

The lady had a long memory as both French and English are likely to have in these matters, but there is something very contemporary in her analysis. For reading these essays, one gets the impression that these two old peoples really don't get on very well together; that no matter what goes right they have rather a predilection for what goes wrong. Dissatisfied neighbors who left to their own devices would have nary a word for each other, they have found themselves driven. together in this century by others, the Germans, the Russians-even the Egyptians and, finally, by economics.

But it was in vesterday's third round that Nicklaus showed what he could do to this course as he shot a 63.

The nine-under-par round was among the best in Nicklaus's career. That gave Big Jack a 54hole individual total of 200 for the third-round lead in the 72hole tourney. With Trevino's 71 yesterds, the United States posted a total of 415 for threerounds, opening a six-stroke lead over South Africa.

South Africa, leader by three strokes in the opening round and by the same margin over the United States Friday, yesterday dropped to 421 as the competition developed into a two-nation tussle, Water Hole Yesterday, shortly after Nick-laus had dropped a 35-foot putt for a birdle at the home green that caused Trevino to run siter the ball and lifht it out of the cup for his smilling teammate, Player drove into the water for a double bogey. He had a 71 after he had been three under par. "It was a atupid shot," said Player. "I should have used an iron instead of a oriver from the tee." "I felt like a dead weight" Trevino said when he and Nicklaus came into the press room yesterday at the clubhouse. Trevino dusted off a chair for his partner with his cap and said, "I got to take care of you. haven't won yet." Wc Nicklaus then discussed his phenomenal round that clipped the accredited course mark of 67, set by Gibby Gilbert in the PGA championship here last Feb-ruary over the 7.096-yard layout. The smaller 1.62-inch diameter the British official pellet, was one asset, Nicklaus said, 'I probably was two or three shots better scoring here than with the 1.68 American bell. I certainly wouldn't try what I did at the thirteenth with the blg ball," he

What he did there was to try to cut across the pond at this 388-yard dogleg. But the ball. dropped into the water. He then knocked a No. 9 second shot, after adding the necessary pen-alty stroke, within four feet of the pin and sank the putt for an unusual par 4.

Sullivan Passes Auburn Over Georgia in Battle of Unbeaten

Throws for 4 Touchdowns

ATHENS, GS., Nov. 14 (NYT), -Auburn won the confrontation of the unbeaten yesterday, defeat-ing Georgia, 35-20, as Pat Sullivan threw four toucbdown passes and from scrimmage, was clearly the difference between the teams,

In glorious, 70-degree weather, before a record crowd of 62,891 in Sanford Stadium, the 75th game of this heated rivairy was an appropriately exciting one, dcclded by a series of dramatic changes in fortune early in the fourth quarter.

Auburn's victory set up another giant Southeastern Conference confrontation when the Tigers face unbeaten Alabama in Birmingham, Ala., in two weeks, Both teams have next weekend off.

Leading 21-14 after a scoreless third period, Auburn fumbled on Its 26-yard line and was suddenly on the defensive. It forced Geor-gia to a field-goal attempt that was wide but ran into the kicker in the process. That gave Georgia another chance to score.

The Bulldogs did, Auburn blocked the extra-point attempt, preserving a 21-20 lead, and on the first down after the klockoff, a 70-yard scoring play, Sullivan to Terry Beasky, made it 28-20.

One Georgia drive ended with an interception. Another got started, from there Sullivan needed four plays to get the touchdown on a four-yard flip to Dick Schmalz. Subjected to the severest type yards, He ran well when he had to, too, but the most impressive features were his accuracy in The victory left Auburn with a 9-0 won-lost mark while Geor-

Big Brother-ism

By Russell Baker WASHINGTON. - The White House says that the reason for the FF it had the FBI investigate Daniel Schorr was not because it disliked the way he covered the Nixon administration for CBS, but because it wanted to offer him a. job.

This explanation has been greated skeptically here. and with cause. The White House concedes, after all, that it didn't llke Schorr's coverage aod that it once telephoned Baker Dr. Frank Stanton, his boss t CBS, to say so. An FBI investigation of a man who already knows that the White House would like to put him out of his job cao be a worrisome development. He is very likely, as Schorr seems to have dove, to leap to the conclusloy that the White House is not planning to give him a new tob on the federal payroli but to scare him to death.

This is an old technique used by the Soviets for making life miserable for people whom the state believes to be counter-productive; they simply assign obvious and unmistakable gumshoes to tramp ooisily along in the victim's footsteps. reminding him constantly that Big Brother is watching.

The object of unconcealed surveillance is oot to get the goods on its man, but to plant fear of the state in his marrow, to keep his mind sensitive to the powers that the corporate state can bring to bear, if it chooses, upon him whose existence annoys it.

It is the nature of these big hureaucratic corporate states to strike at the bothersome outsauce by depriving him of his job, and usually the simple threat to have his job is enough to move him into conformity with the state's wishes.

Against this background, White House insistence that it was planning to offer Schorr a job has seemed unconvincing. The corporate state, we know, takes jobs away from its critics; it doesn't invite them to join the payrolL Or so we naturally assume in the Schorr case.

The White House explanation for the FBI investigation is weak-ened, moreover, by its failure ever to ootify Schorr that hs was a candidate for employment, and by its fallure so far to specify what job he was being investigated for. It may be unfair to jump to the conclusioo that the White House had intimidation rather that employment in mind when It called for the FBL but the governmeot's development into a centralized statist bureaucracy over the past tirree administrations has made it easier than it used to be to suspect the worst.

One of the central philosophic quarrels of the present day centers upon the degree of authority to be vested in the President and the executive branch of government. Looklog at the presidency since Franklin Roosevelt without regard to the personalities who have occupied the office, we see the development of certain monarchical, absolutist tendencies.

The Congress has weakened it-self to the point where it is too feeble even to resist the monarchpresident in the one effective way found by the young English Parliament of the seventeenth century for resisting the Stuarts -by refusing to vote appropriations for the royal wars.

With Mr. Nixon's remaking of the Supreme Court, we see a further effort at accretion of power to the executive. The "conservatives" or "strict constructionists," as President Nixon styles his court appointees, seem to be men whose "conservatism" consists in a readiness to uphold the executive's expanding claims of power. With a feeble Congress and a complaisant bench, and with ao awesome technology and a large bureaucracy submissive to its command, the presidency is be-coming a formidabla institution, indeed.

And so, when we look over our shoulders and see the secret police plodding in our tracks, we can scarcely be blamed if our first impulse is not to smile aod say. My. they're going to offer me a wonderful joh at the White House," but to shudder and think, "Big Brother is watching me." And to resolve to start

Trying to Save Last Wild Horses Of the West

By Lewis Regenstein

WASHINGTON (WP) .- The wild horses in the western United States are facing a new and desperate crisis. With legislation about to be enacted which would protect the few remaining wild horses and burros. a concerted effort seems to be under way to kill off as many as possible before the law takes effect.

Today, only about 10,000 of these horses remain, less than 1 percent of the esti-mated 2 million which once freely roamed the West. The other 99 percent have been slaughtered by pet. food manufacturers for use in dog food, and by ranchers and "sportsmen" who hunt them by airplane and truck, sometimes at the instigation of government of-ficials. The method of hunting is brutal but efficient. After the horses have been located, the lead stallion is blasted with buckshot: the confused and terrified herd is theo buzzed or harassed into a stampede. After chasing the horses until many collapse and die from exhaustion, "mustangers" then round them up for transport to slaughtering houses. The live horses are bound and dragged into trucks, some with broken legs and eyes gouged out. The horses which die of shock or collapsed lungs are left to rot on the prairie. Many newborn foals are thus left, without their mothers, to die a death of slow starvation. Foals born in the slaughtering house are clubbed to death and used for fertilizer. Many ranchers want them eliminated; they argue that the horses compete with domestic livestock for grazing on federal, publicly owoed land leased to the stockmen by the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management (BLM). Some hunting groups also want to get rid of the horses and replace them with "target" or "game" animals which can be hunted.

For many years, the BLM, which has jurisdiction over the land the horses inhabit, hired mustangers to round up hundreds of thousands of horses to be sold at auctions (for a few cents a pound) "to all comers." One Nevada mustanger, Chester "Chug" Utter, hrags that he has captured some 40,000 wild horses for the hureau. Time magazine quotes him as philosophizing: "There's only one end to being a horse, whether he's a champion race horse or a plug, and that's dog food." The hurean's attitude toward the wild mustangs is typified by its proposed action concerning the approximately 230 horses which now inhabit the Pryor Mountain Wild Horse Range in Montana and Wyoming.

A few years ago, when this protected herd reached about 200, BLM expressed concern that overgrazing might damage the land. Using this as a rationale, it proposed to "cut back" the herd to about 30 horses (that is, kill or remove 170 of. them), or eliminate the herd entirely. In this way, the burean could improve the forage and lease it to cattlemen for grazing. Fortunately, a public outcry saved the herd, and until recently it was thriving. Now, however, the government has built a road through the range, and the BLM is again insisting that the herdbe cut back (although none of the horses will be killed).

Legislation seems to be the only hope for saving tha wild mustangs. Bills now before Congress, sponsored hy Sen. Henry Jackson, D., Wash, and Rep. Walter Baring, D., Nev., would provide protec-tion for the remaining horses and hurros by designating them "national heritage species that are living symbols of the historic and pioneer spirit of the West." Meanwhile, the slaughter of the mustangs is continuing. Mrs. Veima John-ston, a Nevadan known as "Wild Horse Annie" who has been battling for 20 years to save the wild horses, has alerted conservationists that "the word has gone out all through the West to 'get rid. of . as many as you can."

It is difficult, however, to determine the extent of this killing, since the state authorities refuse to make branding and roundup permit records available to the public.

In her book "America's Last Wild Horses," Hope Ryden describes the last wild horse in the area of Texas which was, until receotly, the heartland of these This determined creature animals. has avoided capture and "rendering" so long that it has been nicknamed "Born Pres"; despite its advanced age, it still rears up and paws a defiant challenge at planes or helicopters that approach too close.

Jack Oakie celebrated his 68th birthday Saturday, rich hut unemployed. "What're ya gomma do," his said. "You should see the kind of scripts they send me. Pure trash!" "Jack is no prude," his wife, actress Victoria Home, said, "... but he blusbes when he reads the dirty words. in those scripts." Then there is the matter of pay. Producers want him to work for "scale" (union minimum of $138 a day). "They say-scale! Ms work for scale! Are you kidding?" So, after 100 movies, Jack Oakie, little changed except for a full head of white hair, spends his time puttering around his 10-acre baronial estate in the San Fer-nando Valley. He denies he is the richest man in town but "one of my pals said I bought Gen-eral Electric stock when it was General Candle; he could be right." According to an Associated Press interview, he knocked down and held up a few Oakie myths, Is he ooe of the world's great boozers? "Why, I spill more liquor than Dean Martin drinks. Phil Harris, too." Did anybody sver steal a scene from him. "Once. Vic. MicLaglen did in Murder at the Vanities." During a backstage scene, I got overconfident and turned my back. He powdered his nose." .....

A Los Angeles court has awarded $15,000 in damages to Donald Rose Blyth, 42, who spent a night in jail in 1967 after Hedy Lamarr accused him of raping her at gunpoint. Miss Lamarr, then 52, dropped the charges the next day, saying it would be detri-mental to her health to pursue the case. Mr. Blyth said he had been dating Miss Lamarr for about six months. They met after he wrote her a fan letter. Miss Lamarr was not in court. ....
